

Tenure-track position at the University of Florence

The University of Florence has announced a tenure-track faculty position ("RTD B" contract) in the area of experimental nuclear or particle physics.

Candidates are required to possess a PhD as well as three years of research experience in the field.

The position is suitable for an early career scientist willing to join the LHCb group in Florence, with the prospect of becoming an associate professor at the Florence University within three years.

The announcement (in Italian) is available at this link:

<https://www.unifi.it/p12308.html>

The search is wide and competitive. Those who are interested in applying should contact Giacomo.Graziani@cern.ch or Giovanni.Passaleva@cern.ch.

Deadline for application is March 30th.